

Frölich Internationale Transporte joins Transimeksa Group

Hessisch Lichtenau September 1st, 2020

Frölich Internationale Transporte is pleased to announce that the family succession planning considerations have resulted in the decision to join the Transimeksa Group effective as of today. Frölich is a German company based in Hessisch Lichtenau, located near Kassel in the geographical center of Germany.

Frölich Internationale Transporte looks back upon a rich 135-year history as a Frölich family founded, owned and managed business. The last 10 years were pivotal for positioning Frölich for the future. As part of its strategy, it has introduced and successfully developed an intermodal business between Germany and Italy utilizing a direct rail connection. Thereby, it has established a modern transport connection linking the northern and southern European markets through the alps. Furthermore, the rail link is simultaneously environmentally friendly and commercially viable.

Frölich joins Transimeksa with its team of more than 90 motivated colleagues, own office and warehouse capacities in Hessisch Lichtenau, a fleet of approximately 60 trucks, 90 trailers and a direct rail connection linking Kassel and Verona. Augmenting its intermodal business, Frölich also has well-established activities of FTL and LTL within the German domestic market as well as serving long term customers in Austria, Switzerland, Benelux and other European countries.

"The Frölich family is very pleased about the company's development opportunities that result from joining the Transimeksa Group. This is a milestone in our succession plan. Its service offering, complementary geographic reach and prudently managed growth strategy make the Transimeksa Group the perfect new home for the enterprise my wife and I have devoted our lives to for more than four decades." says Helmut Frölich. Monika und Helmut Frölich will continue to support and work closely with Transimeksa during a transition period, in an advisory function, and then will retire.

"Geographic and service expansion into intermodal business has been part of the strategic plan of Transimeksa. Therefore, besides its well-reputed brand, Frölich brings professional know-how to the Transimeksa Group. Our plan for Frölich is to continue business as is, to serve current customers with the current employee base. With the support of Transimeksa Group, Frölich will expand its business and widen the service portfolio. Also, by joining Transimeksa Group, Frölich will have the full support from our entire team and access to the pool of resources enabling further growth. By joining forces, both companies will be able to provide a wider scope and better service quality to existing and new clients." says Darius Vyšniauskas, CEO of Transimeksa.

Transimeksa is the new 100%-owner of Frölich Internationale Transporte. Together with Frölich, Transimeksa Group has more than 1,200 employees, a fleet of more than 600 trucks and 800 trailers, 46,250 sqm warehousing space and offices in Lithuania, Germany, Russia, Italy, Latvia, Estonia and Belarus.
